

Curriculum Vitae

Jovica Pavlović belongs to the young generation of Serbian political scientists interested in political theory, state legitimacy and identity politics. His research predominantly focuses on investigating the right to political self-determination.

Born in Warsaw in 1989, he graduated from Wagner Junior High in New York and from the International Baccalaureate School South in Stockholm, and upon graduation he enrolled at Stockholm University's Department of Political Science.

In early 2009 he became Stockholm University's youngest bachelor of political science, while in 2011 he became the youngest master of political science, obtaining his master's degree at the age of 22. "A Debate on the Reasons for the Kosovo Intervention: A Critical Analysis of Different Views on the Issue" was the title of his bachelor thesis, while his master thesis dealt with "A Critical Discourse Analysis of the Serbian Society's Perception of the Roma Population".

After returning to Serbia, he became a PhD student of political science at University of Belgrade's Faculty of Political Science, where he is currently writing his thesis titled "Developing an Applied Ethics of Secession in Search of a Moral and Just Procedure for Seceding in Eastern and Southeast Europe".

From 2015 to 2017 he was a researcher involved in the "Media, Conflict and Democratization research project", which was funded by European Union's Seventh Framework Program for research, technological development and demonstration.

He also participated in several research projects conducted by the Forum for Ethnic Relations (NGO) and coauthored two of their publications: "National Minorities in Serbia's Relations with Neighboring States" and "Analyzing Policies – Stimulating Integration in Serbia".

From March 2015 to March 2016 he worked as a public diplomacy intern at the Embassy of the United States of America in Belgrade.

He is an alumnus of the Konrad Adenauer Foundation, receiving their stipendium from 2016 to 2017.

A fluent speaker of the English language, he also speaks basic Swedish, while Serbian is his mother tongue.

Articles in Scientific Journals and Books

Pavlović Jovica, “The Influence of Institutional Factors on National, Religious and Linguistic Cleavages in the United Kingdom and Switzerland during Different Party Eras”, Political Review, vol.45, no.3/2015, pp. 171-190. (published in Serbian)

Reviews and Commentaries

Pavlović Jovica, “Veljko Vujačić, Nationalism, Myth and the State in Russia and Serbia”, Annual Journal of the Faculty of the Science, no.9/2015, pp. 201-204. (published in Serbian)

Pavlović, Aleksandar; Carlo Burelli, Aleksandar Fatić, Predrag Krstić, Olimpia G. Loddò, Marjan Ivković, Petar Bojanić, Davide Pala, Mónica Cano Abadía, Srđan Prodanović, Jovica Pavlović, Adriana Zaharijević. “Comments on Tamar Meisels’ “Targeted killing with drones? Old arguments, new technologies”, Philosophy and Society, vol.29, no.1/2018, pg. 17-46.

Other Publications

“National Minorities in Serbia’s Relations with Neighboring States – The Status of National Minorities and Negotiations with the EU: The Role of Neighboring States”, Forum for Ethnic Relations, vol.7, no.1, Belgrade, 2017, pp. 25-48.

“Analyzing Policies – Stimulating Integration in Serbia: Analyzing the Obstacles for the Fulfillment of the Action Plan of the Government of the Republic of Serbia concerning the Implementation of Rights of National Minorities”, Forum for Ethnic Relations, vol.7, no.2, Belgrade, 2017, pp. 87-130.

Research Projects

2014-2015: “National Minorities in Serbia’s Relations with Neighboring States (The Status of National Minorities and Negotiations with the EU: The Role of Neighboring States), carried out by the Forum for Ethnic Relations, funded by the Embassy of the United Kingdom in Belgrade.

2015-2017: “Media, Conflict and Democratization”, carried out by University of Leeds, University of Belgrade, University of Hamburg, University of Cape Town, University of Oxford, Stockholm University, Ruhr University Bochum and American University in Cairo, funded by European Union’s Seventh Framework Program for research, technological development and demonstration.

2016: “Minority Politics and European Integrations – The Role of Bilateral Relations”, carried out by the Forum for Ethnic Relations, funded by the Open Society Foundation.

2017: “Minority Politics in Serbia – Stimulating Integration”, carried out by the Forum for Ethnic Relations, funded by Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Bulgaria.

Academic Conferences

2016, Poznań: Presented research findings at International Political Science Associations’ 24th World Congress of Political Science.

2016, Belgrade: Presented research findings at the Serbian Political Science Associations’ Annual Conference.

2016, Cape Town: Presented research findings at the Project MeCoDEM Final Consortium Meeting.

2017, Brijuni: Presented research findings at 21st Scientific Conference for International and Security Studies of Zagreb University’s Faculty of Political Science.

Lectures held at International Summer Schools

2018, Ohrid: Held a lecture titled “The Rebirth of Nationalism: Balkan States in Search of Legitimacy” as a part of the regional summer school organized by the Konrad Adenauer Foundation and the Wilfried Martens Centre for European Studies.